

PGI Cyber Academy courses available in Southeast Asia

PGI is one of the global leaders in Cyber, Intelligence and Training. Their Bristol-based Cyber Academy offers the highest level of Cyber Security training for business and government professionals, delivering a one-stop training environment to combat the growing cyber threat for all industries.

PGI has partnered with the Malaysia Digital Economy Corporation (MDEC) and Asia Pacific University (APU) to train 72 Malaysians as Cyber Security Incident Responders. Two of these will be selected to be given additional trainer training and certified to deliver the course themselves, developing Malaysian cyber security training capability, and enabling PGI Cyber Academy courses to be delivered cost-effectively to trainees across Southeast Asia.

"This initiative will help to upskill cybersecurity industry talents and produce high-income professionals. The increasing wave of cyberthreats and risks could impede trust and resilience in the digital economy and prevent the region from realising its full digital potential."

CEO, MDEC*

Cyber Security Training Tailored For Your Needs

With the help of the Department for International Trade, MDEC identified PGI as a collaborative partner to reduce the global skills gap.

This initiative will be instrumental in helping protect the Malaysian economy, businesses and national security in cyber space and fill some of the projected 2 million unfilled cyber security roles worldwide.

Through this partnership, PGI UK will showcase UK best practice in Cyber Security and transfer knowledge to other governments and partners, by sharing some of their modules that can be adopted in the respective countries. This capability building will put the UK at the forefront of cyber security capability building across the world.

"This agreement is a significant step towards establishing a Far East version of PGI's Cyber Academy.

It will act as our regional training hub and provide an alternative delivery option through which all our international clients can access PGI's high-quality, UK government certified, cyber security skills training.

Our training is certified by GCHQ, the UK's Technical Authority for Cyber Security through its Certified Training scheme and delivered by practitioner trainers"
